501(c)(3) Organizations

- Meet approved purposes: “charitable, religious, scientific, educational, literary, etc.”

- Get favorable tax treatment

- Fall into three main categories:
  - Public charities
  - Private operating foundations
  - Private non-operating foundations

- Restrictions on lobbying, unrelated business income, and self-dealing
Major Areas of Distinction

• Legal Characteristics
• Economic Structures
• Mission Orientation
• Culture and Norms

"Good afternoon, Ma'am — I represent one of those pesky non-profit organizations...."
Legal Characteristics

• Not For Making a Profit: Established for a purpose other than to make a profit, usually a social purpose or member serving

• Non-Distribution Constraint: Precluded from distributing any surplus (profits or net assets) to those in control, unless it is another nonprofit

• Privately Controlled: Nongovernmental organization (NGO), typically governed by a board of citizen trustees, usually either self-perpetuated or elected by members
What does that mean?

• Nonprofit organizations cannot raise equity capital, issue stock, or offer profit-sharing to staff.

• With no stockholders, the Board and staff must hold organization accountable:
  - Answerable to the “public”
  - Oversight by IRS and state AGs or Secretary of State.
  - Child Care is further accountable to state regulations.
Funding Sources

- Government grants
- Private contributions - individual & foundation
- Fees for services or goods-tuition
- Investment income
Revenue Sources

Source: NCCS calculations from various sources 2008 - 2012
Sources of Private Donations

– Foundations
– Corporations/Business
– Individuals
– Bequests

In 2018 total private contributions to US nonprofits totaled $427.71 billion

Mission Orientation

While businesses tend to be more market or profit driven, nonprofits tend to be mission driven.
This has an affect on key management dimensions:

- Performance evaluation
- Competitive dynamics
- Marketing strategy
- Human resource management
Culture & Norms

- Sacrifice v. Rewards
- Passion & Commitment v. Skills & Effectives
- Need v. Opportunity
- Process & Consensus v. Quick Decision Making
- Compassionate employment, versus performance-based employment
- Lean, program orientation, versus building capacity and support systems
- Politics and funding considerations, versus program impact

Mission, Vision & Values
What do we Believe in?

Taken together the vision, mission and core values answer this question.
Mission

• How you will achieve or contribute to the vision.
• Why does the organization exist?
• The ACTION (What, at the most basic level, does the organization do?)
• The CAUSE (who or what are you doing it for?)
• The IMPACT (why does that matter?)
What is the mission of your nonprofit?

Does it need revision?

Are the Staff and Board aware of the mission? Could they repeat it?
Vision

• How will your community be changed, made better by what you have done?

• Where do you want to end up?
What is the vision of your nonprofit?

Does it need revision?

Are the Staff and Board aware of the vision? Could they repeat it?
Values

• How do you get the work done?

• What makes you different than other organizations?

• How you know you’ll reach the mission.
What are the values of your nonprofit?

What guides the work that you do?
Why Do Nonprofits Bother with Boards?

• Required by law
• Advise and counsel
• Provide oversight and accountability
• Determine organizational purpose (mission & vision)
• Connection to ownership, ambassadors in community
§ 8.01. Requirement for and duties of board
Each corporation must have a board of directors.
All corporate powers shall be exercised by or under the authority of, and the affairs of the corporation managed under the direction of, its board.

§ 8.03. Number of directors
A board of directors must consist of three or more individuals.

§ 8.12. Compensation of directors
Unless the articles of incorporation or bylaws provide otherwise, a board of directors may fix the compensation of directors.

§ 8.40. Required officers
Unless otherwise provided in the articles or bylaws, a corporation shall have a president, a secretary, a treasurer and such other officers as are appointed by the board.

§ 8.25. Committees of the board
Unless prohibited or limited by the articles of incorporation or bylaws, a board of directors may create one or more committees and appoint members of the board to serve on them. Each committee shall have two or more members, who serve at the pleasure of the board of directors.
Guiding Principles of Governance

• Board exist to be accountable that the organization works.
• Board’s do not need to control everything.
• Board’s should control all it must, rather than all it can.
• Confidence (or ignorance) of a trusting Board may lead to rubber stamping.
• Zeal of a conscientious (or ignorant) Board may lead to micro management.

Three Mindsets

Strategic

Generative

Fiduciary
Fiduciary

To hold in trust. Board members act as trustees of the organization’s assets and must exercise due diligence to oversee that the organization is well-managed and that its financial situation remains sound. Responsibility to beneficiaries.
Strategic

Make major decisions about resource allocation, programs and overall strategic direction. Create and monitor strategic plan.
Generative

Engage in deeper inquiry, exploring root causes, values, optional courses and new ideas. Support staff leaders to improve and innovate their perception and perspective.
Shared Responsibility

Board of Directors
Staff
Advisors

Connecting Ideas
Collaborative Relationships
Coordinated Organizational Structures
HOW DOES YOUR BOARD GOVERN?

CEO Engagement

High

Governance by Observation
Board is less engaged in governance than CEO

Governance as Leadership
Board engages in a constructive partnership with CEO

Low

Governance by Attendance
Board and CEO are unengaged and going through the motions of governance

Governance as Micromanagement
Board displaces CEO's role in governance

Board Engagement

Low High
Structure

Board of Directors
Assumes the legal responsibility for an organization’s existence

Executive Director
Manages the daily operations of the organization

Effective or Ineffective?
Governing Documents

What are they?
• By-Laws
• Articles of Incorporation
• Conflict of Interest Policy
• Board Recruitment & Nomination Policy
• Written Whistleblower Protection Policy
• Written Gift Acceptance Policy
• Policy for Board Approval of Executive Compensation
• Board Meeting Minutes
Hierarchy of Governing Documents

- Articles of Incorporation
- Bylaws
- Board Policy and Procedures Manual
- Region and Division Policy Manuals
- Strategic Plan
- Budget
  - Committee Charters and Job Descriptions
What to Watch For
Time on the Trivial: too much attention given to trivial items compared to the attention given to larger more important items.
Short-term bias: Boards should have the longest ranging view, yet they deal mainly in the near term and the past. Last month’s financial statement may get more attention than the organization’s strategic position.
Reviewing, Rehashing, Redoing:
Boards may spend too much time going over what the staff has already done. Waste of boards talent and does not constitute leadership.
Leaky accountability/delegation: Boards often allow accountability to leak around the Executive Director. Board members may direct staff or judge their performance.

This is especially challenging when Board members are parents with children in the program.
Board members lack clarity: about their role and involve themselves in operational details that are outside of their purview. For example doing the work of staff when not asked. There is a difference between volunteering and overstepping.
Remember......

• Board members are volunteers, not paid staff
• Board members need to feel engaged, useful and self directed
• Board members not included in decision making are marginalized and lose interest (a problem with executive committees)
• Board meetings are an opportunity to discuss board business and the agenda should reflect that
• Each board member has something to offer
• The chair/president of the board play a key role
Board and Executive Director Roles
What Should Boards Do?

• Meet regularly
• Provide advise & council when asked
• Set board policy
• Determine and approve bylaw changes
• With staff, determine mission and vision
• Raise money and attend special events
• Engage in strategic planning and generative thinking

• Establish org. performance measures and monitor outcomes
• Set clear expectations for Executive Director’s performance
• Act as ambassadors in the community
• Deliberate, disagree, agree and think together
• Enjoy each other’s company
Board Meetings

• Should be the Board’s meeting rather than the management’s meeting for the Board.
• Board members should learn together – contemplate, deliberate and decide together.
• Meetings are not about reviewing the past, being entertained by staff, or helping staff do its work.
• The Executive Director should always be present but does not play a central role
• Board meetings should be more about long term future than the present – an exception is a crisis.
The Board Responsibility to the ED:

- Be clear about what you expect from the ED’s performance
- Stay focused on the ends and let the ED manage the means
- Evaluate the ED to see how expectations are being met
- Support the ED and Provide advise & counsel when asked
The Exec Director Should:

- Lead the Staff & Manage the Organization
- Manage the finances (payroll, accounts, budget, cash flow)
- Develop Effective Programs
- Support the Board & Engage them in Planning
- Lead & Manage Fundraising with board support
- Implement Strategic Plan
The Executive Director is:

• The single point of delegation for the Board
• Is the one and only employee of the board
• Created by the Board (hired & fired)
• Accountable for meeting the board’s expectations for organizational performance
• Responsible for supporting the board but is not accountable for what the board’s job is or how well you do your job
• Responsible for the staff that s/he hires, supervise and evaluates
The Executive Director’s Responsibility to Staff

• Responsible for hiring, training and supervising staff
• Responsible for evaluating staff performance based on clear expectations
• Responsible for creating a safe, accessible working environment
• Within the boundaries of an approved budget, responsible for staff compensation
What Happens?

- Great Board meetings with collaboration and consensus but still room for vigorous conversations
- Board becomes strategic and forward thinking
- Executive Director supports the board and manages the operations with autonomy and skill.
- Meetings become about the future and not about reviewing the past
Ask Yourself....

- Why did you join the board?
- Do you feel engaged, useful and rewarded?
- Do you understand the organization, its mission and programs?
- Does the board think strategically?
- Are the meetings efficient and productive?
Remember…. No organization was ever formed so it could be well governed, have good personnel policies, a fine budget, sound purchasing practices or even nicely planned services, programs or curricula.
Next Steps & Resources

• Engage in conversation – create agenda items to discuss roles, mission, etc.

• Think about strategic planning

• Develop board policy to address roles and boundaries; conflict of interest
